INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP FOR STUDENTS ON HUMAN RIGHTS

30th January - 2nd February 2020

"BEING THE OTHER:
RECOGNIZING, ACCEPTING AND
COMPREHENDING EXPERIENCES OF DIVERSE MINORITIES"

Organized By

Sophia Girls' College, Ajmer
(Autonomous)
(Department of Political Science and History)

In collaboration with People's Union for Civil Liberties
(PUCL)

Concept Note

The United Nations defines Human Rights as rights inherent to all human beings regardless of race, sex, nationality, ethnicity, language, religion or any other status. These rights are envisaged to be inalienable to every human being, and to be protected by the rule of law. History is testament to the brutal acts of repression unleashed by the dominant groups on the presumed 'Other'; in the form of violence, discrimination, denial of the civil liberties etc. This makes the study of human rights especially from the perspective of the minority groups essential.

Identities, generally defined by attributes like race, nationality, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation etc are lenses through which individuals see themselves, and are perceived by people. Within these identities exist the 'Other' i.e. the people whose characteristics are seemingly different and do not conform to that of the dominant group. Their 'otherness' defined mostly on the basis of their physical (race, gender, ethnicity) and personal attributes (religion, language, sexual orientation, status) leads to their exclusion from employment opportunities especially the higher echelons; denial of traditional land rights, holding elected offices; disparity in economic development and freedom of speech, mobility and opinion. While we see a rise in appeal of ethnicity and religion as more dominant modes of channelizing politics in recent times; the chasm between the dominant groups and the multiple minorities only further increases. The individuals of the diverse minority groups increasingly feel like social strangers in such a society.

This is where the academia plays an important role in its receptiveness to understanding the 'othering' of minorities and the sensitivity in comprehending their varied experiences. The workshop aims to explore the diversity of minorities and delve deep into their unique experiences of both denial of basic rights and their resistance against the dominant groups. It also aims to highlight the essence of the life of M.K. Gandhi; which was to hone the skills of truth and non-violence to uphold the human rights of various individuals i.e. eliminate poverty, expand women's rights; build ethnic and religious harmony and eliminating the injustices of the caste system. Through this pursuit, we can channelize the young scholars to develop within them, the sensibility to fathom the perspective of the minorities and work towards building an inclusive society. "I understand democracy as something that gives the weak the same chance as the strong"

About the Departments

Economics:
The Department of Economics was established in the year 1959 to offer in-depth knowledge of Economics as a subject to young girls. Honors in Economics was started in the year 1998. With the changing scenario, both at National and International level, the curriculum was revised after getting an Autonomous status.

Political Science:
Established in 1959, the Department of Political Science aims at creating political awakening and enlightening young minds with the much required Political education. In 2017, the Department also introduced a Post-Graduate course. Through academic courses and activities, the Department gives a platform to explore the diverse political spectrum.

About the Conference

Over the centuries, civilisations have relied on the availability of clean and inexpensive water. This can no longer be taken for granted as the need for water continues to increase due to the pressure from growing global population as well as demands from agriculture and industry. Water distribution networks as well as soiled water collection system also present serious problems. The socio-political implications of a world short of clean, easily available water are enormous.

Water problems happen to be a problem of multi-dimensional nature from Water Pollution to Water Politics. It will lead to realignment in international politics and the emergence of new centres of power in the world. The problem has serious implications for India as well. According to the Composite Water Management Index (CWMi) report released by the NITI Aayog in 2018, 21 major cities (Delhi, Bengaluru, Chennai, Hyderabad and others) are racing to reach zero groundwater levels by 2020, affecting access for 100 million people. 12 per cent of India's population is already living the 'Day Zero' scenario, thanks to excessive groundwater pumping, an inefficient and wasteful water management system and years of deficient rains. This glaring problem demands immediate corrective measures to be taken.

Therefore there is a need- to question, discover, ponder and answer. The need of the hour is for us, as stakeholders, to debate and discuss the latest developments, strategies, techniques and applications of best practices to innovatively manage this very important resource- Water. Past experiences, global methods and local knowledge can combine to help offer plausible solutions, let's not wait for a miracle to save this 'miracle drink'.
